TAKE PHOTO DROP PAPER

Every mid-sem and end-sem around 3000 students appear for examination in our college, that implies 3000 question papers per day and usually there are 5-6 papers per student i.e approx 15,000 papers are generated during examination.

This a huge amount of paper waste as most of the students do not preserve the question papers.

Our initiative was to appeal to students to voluntarily drop the question paper in the recycling box and if they need the question paper for future reference they can take a photo of the question paper before dropping it. Later we also provided a google drive link which contained all the question papers.

For this initiative we installed cardboard boxes outside all examination halls. Those boxes had text on them which read "Take photo, Drop Paper". To better spread word about this initiative we created a video of students dropping paper in the box.

We were able to collect around 1000 question papers for the first time. May not sound like a big number but for the first time, it was appreciable.
